Praise for Murder on Shades Mountain:

“In this passionate account of Jim Crow-era injustice, educator and activist Morrison exposes how courtrooms ‘could function like lynch mobs when the defendant was black.’ Morrison, who is white, shares this painful story with clarity and compassion, emphasizing how much has changed since the 1930s, how much white people need to ‘critically interrogate’ the past, and how much ‘remains to be done’ in the fight for justice.”
